Etere delivers virtual router control

Tolentino, 25 September 2006– Etere includes virtual router control in ETERE suite

What is a virtual router control?

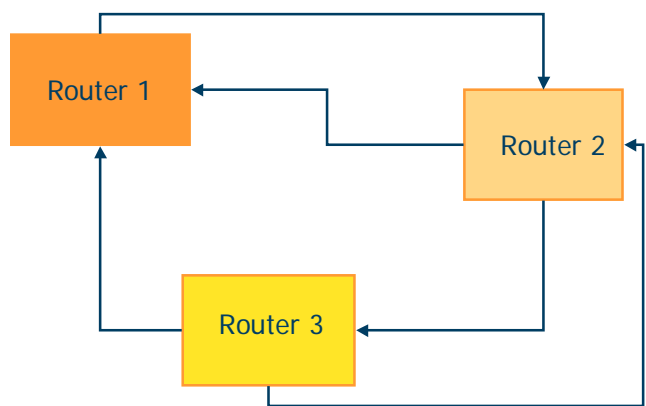

A lot of broadcasters have a complex routing system.

The system is designed to the best price performance and it's composed by multiple routers connected.

The Etere Vrouter driver allows you to join multiple routers in a single big virtual router. You can specify for each in and out of the virtual router and combination of in and out of the single set of routers.

This will allow any combination of multiple routers joined in a single configuration. Cascading routers and multiple connections with a single virtual in-out request allow a simple use of the most complex system.

Etere Vrouter control is unique in the automation panorama, it delivers another milestone that other systems must reach.
